

Siao ah, you alright?!

SINGLISH UNIVERSITY PRESS
DEPARTMENT OF LINGUISTICS LEH

Author: Community

Chapter 1

The basics

One of the main motivations of writing this two-page book is to document the array of fancy vocabulary spoken in the UK, necessary for navigating (surviving) the social life here (or Singapore) - if you desire one. Of course, this book would not be useful for you if you prefer the life of a hikikomori ¹, but sorry no refunds. I have lived in the UK for 3 years, and have taken some effort to understand the beautiful nauced English language sufficiently. As you might have already guessed from my name, I grew up in Singapore and became 200% proficient in the art of Singlish after reciting the pledge for more than 10 years of my life, wa wayang leh. You can only imagine the awkward stares I received when I said that 'wa I'm damm shagged man' to my non-Singaporean (Malaysia also can) friends.

If you are starting your life in the UK (or Singapore), I hope that you will find this list of translation useful for navigating the some of the awkward conversations I had. In the following incomplete list (i.e. work in progress), we will outline some of the basic slangs commonly spoken in both countries. As you might have already noticed, the italised words refer to Singlish vocabulary, and the words that come after the hyphen '-' are in English,

1. OI! - You alright (or, DYUU OLRIOIGHT),
2. You know hor - Do you know what I mean (or, JEANETTE AMIN),
3. Shag sia - I'm knackered,
4. Siao ah - Shocking!
5. Fun sia - Oh its mad fun bruv,
6. Jialat - I'm not having it.
7. Sibei Jialat - I'm not having ANY of it.
8. Stun like vegetable - I'm shocked.
9. You know horr - Oh sorry, are you informed of..

When it doubt, begin your sentences with 'Oh sorry'! Good luck!!

¹A severe form of social withdrawal

Chapter 2

Becasue a single chapter isn't sufficient

1. Auntie one Kopi please - Can I have a latte please, thank you!
2. Chin chai - Whatever..
3. Hot sia - It's BOILLING init!
4. Siao ah - THAT'S CRIMINAL!
5. Malu - A disgrace

Chapter 3

Entries from Google response

The entries below are fetched from Google sheets.

1. Damn emo sia - Utterly gutted (Sandra Poeschmann)
2. CI test 2 - CI test 2 (Ch)
3. I'm dying - I'm famished (Geli)
4. Dying - Shagged out (Geli)
5. CI test - CI test (Ch)
6. Malu - Disgraceful! (Ch)
7. Shag sia test - I'm knackered test (Ch)
8. Oi - you alright (Ch)
9. Sian - I'm not having it test (Ch)
10. test - test (test)